THE PATRIOTIC BOY:

A TRUE STORY OF 1861.

One morning in May, 1861, a knot of young men were standing at the corner of the principal street in a little town not far from Boston, excitedly discussing the latest nows, for the torch of war had been lighted at Fort Sumter, and the red glow filled the land, putting a stop for a time to all business whickery; till the first volunteer, armies had been enlisted and sent out to crush the rebellion. Among the rest, not talking, but with eager eyes and ears drinking in all that was said, stood Albert O., a boy of sixteen years, son of the wealthiest man in the place.

"I would enlist this minute," said Charley, B., "if there was any one to look after my dear old mother. She is so feeble now, and her little property is not equal to the country in the country is not equal to the country in the country is not equal to the country in the country is not equal to the country in the country is not equal to the country in the country in the country is not equal to the country in the country in the country in the country is not equal to the country in th

"I would enlist this minute," said Charley B., "if there was any one to look after my dear old mother. She is so feeble now, and her little property is not quite enough to keep her, so how can I go?"

"I don't see how you can, Charley," spoke another young man; "but I wish you could, for you and I have been chums so long that I would be glad if we could be comrades still."

"I want to go," said an older man in the group—a grave, sad-looking man; "I know if my Mary was living she'd tell me to go at once and serve my country; but how can I leave my motherless children?"

"I thought their aunt Emily took care of them," remarked another.

"So she does, but she could not afford to do so for nothing. I pay hor $200 a year for their board and what teaching she can give them till they can go to the public school. If they were old enough Jenny could teach and Willie could work in a machine shop, and so take care of themselves; but now they are too young for mo to leave."

"And I," said another.

"And I," said another.

And they talked about the new company, and who of their town's people were to be officers and so on till one of them turned to the boy, asking:

"Is it true, Albert, 'that your father's book-keeper is going as ensign?"

"I don't know," replied Albert, 'the has eigh welling desired, beat in the state of the men."

"Yes, he is going," said one of the men."
I went to the store not an hour since and he told me so."

So the talk want on, and Albert, listened.

"I went to the store not an nour since and he told me so."
So the talk went on, and Albert listened awhile, but presently left them, and going to his father's house went to his own room, where he locked himself in; and sitting down by the window, gazed out upon the sky, apparently lost in auxious thought. At last his face brightened; an enreest, ardent look came into his dark blue cycs; he started up and walked around the room excitedly.

Then leaving his room he went to his father's office. Mr. O. was very much oc-cupied, and Albert waited as patiently as he could till the visitor was gone, then he could till the visitor was gone, then went in.

"Tather," said he, "can you spare five minutes to talk with me?"

"Yes, my son, ten if you like."

"Is it true, father, that Mr. J., your book-keeper, has enlisted?"

"Yes, Albert, he is going as ensign; he told me so this morning, and I have sent money up to your mother not an hour ago, that she may buy the material for the regimental colors. Your sisters will help her make the flag, and all must be ready in four days to present to the regiment before they leave."

This news was very interesting to Albert.

"My dear Albert, you know I never refuse you anything reasonable."

"I know if, father, but this—O, I know just what you will say! But I can't help it! Father, this morning I heard some of the men talking, and there were two who wanted to enlist and would, but one had an infirm old mother to look after, and the other had two little children—motherless children—and so they could not either of them go, though they wanted to so much."

"And so you want me to provide for the old mother and two little children? Well, I'll try to do it—but—"

"No, no, father, not that; I know you have quite enough on your hands as it is—so many to help—but, father, I'knom you have quite enough on your hands as it is—so many to help—but, father, I'knom you have quite enough on your hands as it is—so many to help—but, father, I'knom you have quite enough on your hands as it is—so many to help—but, father, I'knom you have quite enough on your hands as it is—so many to help—but, father, I'knom you have guite enough on your hands as it is—so financhies."

A MELODRAMATIC, as well as scien tife, picture of the inconvenience to the living arising from the presence of the dead is drawn by Dr. Eklund, of Stockholm. To remedy the evils resulting from delay in burials and subsequent decomposition, the doctor proposes to render some simple process of emblament compulsors and suggests embalmment compulsory, and suggests the creation of a corps of embalmers the creation of a corps of embalmers for that purpose. This plan rather runs counter to modern views on the subject of burial, which tend to favor methods allowing of rapid disintegration, and is, besides, far inferior to cremation both from a financial and a practical point of view. Notwithstanding all that may be urged—and urged truly—against the practice of inhumation, it is a matter wherein prejudice, custom, and a dislike of innovation will long hold scientific arguments and methods in check, to the greater or less detriment of public health.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Trom Our Regular Correspondent,

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23d, '86

Washington, Oct. 23d, '86

The presidential trip to the Virginia State Fair dwindled into small propore those authorized by said Board, which tions after being heralded so loudly. The president and Mrs. Cleveland, the Cabinet and ladies of the Cabinet, all were to have honored the old dominion with their presence, but the ladies changed their minds at the last moment, as did also several members of the Cabinet, and remained at home.

To the Board of Control of the St. Mary Falls Ship Canal, for an extension of the formed by said Board, which said application will be heard and determined by said. Board at its regular meeting at the Auditor Generals office in Lurising, Mich., on November 25th 1886, at 10 clock a. m., or as soon thought their minds at the last moment, as did also several members of the Cabinet, and remained at home. the Cabinet, and remained at home. This sudden cartailment of the brill iant procession caused a good deal of in Richmond. Some said their action was in consequence of Miss Winn Davis, daughter of the ex-president of

Lee, and because she was to have been a prominent feature of the pre judges of award made no mistake that arranged reception at the gubernatorial mansion. The war is not over get in old Virginia, as your correspondent had an opportunity to learn while sojourning among its mountains during the past summer. They still talk a great deal about blue blood and southern chivalry, and I heard a lady say she did not like President Cleveland because from have much blue blood to him. I told ty of red blood, and then she seemed satisfied. But to return to the subject of the president's trip, Grover is nothing if not cautious when it comes to such matters as the management of receptions. That relect little coterie of rebels had arranged to have the presidential party mostly to themselves while in Richmond. The better half of the administration prudentially decid ed to keep house in Washington until the president returned, and Kr. Cleveland said he preferred to hold his reception on the fair grounds. The pres ident's next trip will be made on Wednesday, when he will go, with his Cal inet, to the dedication of the Barthol-

Speaking of Mr. Cleveland's lack of blue blood, it is supposed that his deficiency is amply supplied by Secreta ries Bayard and Endicott. These gentlemen represent the aristocracy of this administration, claiming long lines' of puritan and patrician descent

Mr. Beyard does not obtrude his ar istocracy, but the Endicotts are very stiff and reserved. Their idea of festive board by no means reaches the standard of the free lunch lighters of Washington society. The Secretary of War is sourcely known to the public men here, and has no more influence among them than one of his subordinates. Indeed he only appears at the War Department when he feels inclined, and it is often remarked that he regards the presence of a caller as an affront.

You may remember something about his troubles with Congressman Collins in regard to their state appointments They disagreed because Mr. Endicott wanted only Mayflower citizens appointed, while Mr. Collins insisted on having good democrats who had equal secial standing but not so long a pedigree. Patrick Collins is a frank open sort of a business man, who thinks wilve participation in politics is perfectly proper. He thought that almost any of the leading democrat of Masachusetts could be safely put into any of her federal offices. But Mr. Endloott would not be contented with anybody except members of the 'First Church," and some of the best places in the Bay State were so long held and why some are still held by re publicans. Yes, Secretary Endicott is a very nice looking emineutly respecta-ble man, but he has a great deal more blood than brains,

A gonthoma who has spont the summer shread said to our reporter that the thing that impressed him most of all was the number of he lelays one encounters abroad, and the little acxiety the people display in the conduct or business sillabra. "Mon boast here," he said, "that they work for yours without a day off; in Europe that would be considered a crime. In Europe that would be considered a crime. "Then I suppose you have been advertising oxtensively?"
"Not at all. We have always heretofore closed our haboratory during July, August and September, but this summer we have kep it running day and night to supply the demand, which has been three times greated than ever before in our history at this season."

than ever before in our history at this sea-son."

"How do you account for this?"

"The increase has come from the universal recognition of the excellence of our prepara-tions. We have been usarly ton years before the public and the sales are constantly in-creasing white our newspaper advertising is constantly dininishing. Why, high selen-tife and modical authorities now publicly concede that our Warner's safe cure is the only scientific specific for kidney and liver diseases, and for all the many diseases caused by them."

concede that our Warner's safe cure is the only scientific specific for kidney and liver diseases, and for all the many diseases caused by them."

"Have you evidence of this?"

"Abundance! Only a few weeks ago Dr. J.
I. Stephens, of Lebanon, Ohio, a specialist for the our of narcotic, etc., habts told me that a number. of eminent scientific medical men had been experimenting for years, testing and analyzing all known remedies for the kidneys and liver, for as you may be aware, the excessive use of all narcotics and atimulants destroys those organs, and until they can be restored to health the habits cannot be proken up! Among the investigators were such mon as J. M. Hall, M. D., President of the State Board of Health of Iowa, and Aloxader Neil, M. D., Deofersor of Sergery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and President of the Academy of Medicine at Commons, who after exhaustive inquiry, reported that there was no remedy known to schools or to scientific inquiry equal to Warner's safe cure!"

"Are many persons addicted to, the use of deadly drugs?"

"There are forty millions of people in the world who use onium alone, and there are many hundreds of housands in this country who are victims of morphine, opium, quin'ne, and cocains. They think they have no such habit about them—so many people are unconscious victims of morphine, opium, quin'ne, and cocains. They think they have no such habit about them—so many people are unconscious victims of morphine, opium, quin'ne, and cocains. They have no such and the assessment of what they call malatia and other diseases, when he reality it is the demand in the square for these torrible drugs, a demand that is caused largely by physicians proccriptions which contain so many dangerous drugs, and strong spirits, and one that moderate opium and other drug saters, if they sustain the kidney and liver specific. only kidney and diver apocials. He also says that moderate opium and other drug eaters, it they sustain the kidney and llyer vigor with that great remedy, can keep up these habits in moderation."

"Well, does not this discovery give you a new revelation of the power of safe curer."

"No, sir, for years I have tried to convince the public that nearly all the diseases of the human system originate in some discrete. of the kidneys or liver, and hone I have logically declared that if our specific were used, over minety per cent of these alments would disappear. The liver and kidneys seem to absorb these poisons from the blood and become depraved and diseased."

"When these eminent authorities thus publicly admit that there is no remedy like ours to enable the kidneys and liver to throw off the frightful effects of all deadly drugs and excessive use of stimulants, it is an admission of its power as great as any one could desire; for if through its influence alone the opium, morphine, quinine, cocaine, and liquer habits can be overcome, what higher testimonial of its aspecific power could be asked for?"

"You really believe, then, Mr. Warner, that the majority of diseases come from kidney and liver complainte?"

"Ito! When you see a person moping and groveling about, half dead and half alive, year after, year, you may aurely put him down as having some kidney and liver trouble."

"The other day I was talking with Dr. Fowler, the eminent coulist of this city, who said that half the patients who came to him for eye treatment were affected by advanced kidney discussed the proper of the body; with some it affects the eyes, with others the kead, or the bids order follows and neurality are strained them to obtain the blood, and they may prevail and no pain occur, in the kidneys."

What They Were.

A hostess who can not preserve her serenity upon even the most crucial oc-casions, is lacking in one of the most essential qualities of an entertainer. The thoughtless spilling of her best wine, the soiling of her whitest table-cloth, nay, even the smashing of a whole trayful of her best old family hina, should not cause one muscle of ner countenance to change.

On the other hand, an affected ignor-On the other hand, an affected ignorance respecting the contents of the day's bill of fare is at times almost as fatal as the opposite extreme. I was myself present at a dinner party at which one of the untutored stable-helpers had been brought in, on an emergency, to assist. "What are these, John?" inquired the languid hostess, as John tremblingly thrust forward a dish of tartlets just, under her right dish of tartlets just under her right elbow. "I don't know, ma'am. really," he replied, "but I tlink they're tup-pence apiece!"—Chambers' Journal.

Ma. A. Furger, 606 Walnut street, St. Louis, Mo., suffered for two years with lumbago, and was confined to his bed for several months. He was entirely cared by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, which he says is also the best cure for sprains, and all other reasons.

A PHYSICIAN wrote to the Medical Record that he had found in a swal-low's nest a young bird with one of its legs thoroughly bound with horse hairs. Removing the hairs he found that the leg was broken. The bird was then let alone. The mother bird bandaged the leg again in the same way, and the broken leg made a good recovery.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

Mrs. Harriet Cummings, of Cincinuati, Ohio, writes "Early last winter my daughter was attacked with a severe cold, which settled on her lungs. We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to, do her any good, but she confinient do get worse, and finally-raised large amounts of blood from her lungs. We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. At this time a friend who had been cured by DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, advised me to give it a trial. We got a bottle, and she began to improve, and by the use of three bottles was entirely cured."
